CAMAS GENERATION once removed from present high school ages may remember this photo appearing on page 1, Los Angeles Times, Jan. 1, 1947, showing 44 members of band that arrived in L. A. that day by S. P. train. Times noted: "You may never have heard of Camas, a little city of 5500 in Washington, but you certainly will if you see the Tournament of Roses today." Camas citizens raised $4400 to send band to Pasadena to be in Rose Parade and play at halftime in game. Times reported it was first time an out-of-state band had ever been invited to participate. Tournament of Roses Chairman Elmer Wilson had seen Camas group in Portland Rose Festival parade earlier that year and band had proved such a hit in Portland he had invited Camas youngsters to come to Pasadena for New Year's spectacular. Wayne Moffitt was director of 1947 band. Mrs. Larry Hobson, Rt. 1, Box 505, Camas, brought clipping to Post-Record.
